WHITELAW REID

IN DANGER OF REJECTION BY THE

THE DEMOCRATS DO NOT WANT HIM, And He Has Made Himself Obnoxious to Many Influential Members of His Own Party. WASHINGTON, March 20 .- [Special.]-The senate was in executive session for nearly two hours today. A number of nominations were confirmed, but their consideration occupied but little time. Nearly one hour and a half was spent over the nomination of Mr. Whitelaw Reed to be United States minister to France. The nomination was reported favorably from the committee on foreign relations by Mr. Sherman, and immediately thereafter precipitated the debate, which, for personality, has not had its equal since Henry W. Hilliard, of Georgia, was nominated by Mr. Hayes for minister to Brazil. THE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS, led by Senator Vest, denounced Mr. Reid for not only maligning them in the Tribune, but for maligning their constituencies in that Mr. Reid has repeatedly said in the columns of that paper that no member of the senate or the house from the south has a just title to his seat. The defense of the republican senators was, to say the least, a little luke warm. Many of them have been thus objects of caustic criticism at the hands of Mr. Reid, and none of them seem to forget the experience which he had gone through. After the session closed this after-noon, a democratic member of the senate from Mississippi said that in his opinion he did not regard the confirmation of Mr. Reid's nomination as at all probable. All of the democrats are opposed to it, and as he understood three

REPUBLICAN SENATORS WOULD VOTE against it. It was thought that the outcome would be that Mr. Reid would make a decent retreat by declining the position, and asking Mr. Harrison to withdraw his name from the senate. One of the republican senators, who, it is understood, opposes Mr. Reid's confirmation, is the senior senator from New York, Mr. Evarts. While not taking any very prominent part in the politics of New York, Mr. Evarts is opposed to what is known as the Warner Miller faction, and that faction is upheld by the Tribune, and consequently Mr. Evarts has not received any very great consideration at his hands. Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, is another opponent of Mr. Reid. Senator Davis, of Minnesota, is another senator who thinks that it would be better all around for the government if Mr. Reid should be retained in his present position and not be delegated to represent the United States

THE DELAY AHEAD Which May Make Waiting Candidates

WASHINGTON, March 20 .- [Special.]-There is considerable despondency among the appli-cants for marshalships and district attorney-ships and the friends of those applicants. This despondency grows out of an announce ment which Mr. Harrison has made. A delegation of Virginians called on him and asked for the immediate removal of one of the two democratic marshalships in that state, and the democratic marshalsings in that state, and the appointment of a certain gentleman in whose behalf they were working. Mr. Harrison told them flat-footed that where, as in this case, an officer of the judiciary branch of the government had several months to serve,

HE WOULD MAKE NO CHANGE until the expiration of his term. He also added that if any officer, a district attorney or marshal had as much as a year of unexpired time, he would allow him to retain his position until his commission expires. This rule which ply, however, to the district attorney and United States marshal of his own state. It will be remembered that Chambers, for district attorney, and Dunlap, for United States marshal, were among the first appointments made. It is presumed that in the Indiana case

CITIZEN PLEDGER'S WRATH Warmed Up by Brothers Locke and

WASHINGTON, March 20.—[Special.]—It transpires today that Colonels Locke and Dar-nell have combined to "down" Citizen Pledger in his ambitions, and word has reached here from Georgia that Pledger will reach here tomorrow to counteract what Locke and Darnell are doing. They are accused of attempting to secure the services of Deveaut to aid in crushing out Citizen Pledger. There is one thing certain, that Pledger is very much rattled, and when he arrives to face his accusers, broad-bladed razors may glisten in the

THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE.

A Resolution as to His Tenure of Office.

WASHINGTON, March 20 .- The vice president laid before the senate a communication from the governor of Rhode Island, stating that the resignation of Mr. Chace as senator from Rhode Island has been presented and accepted. Laid on the table.

For half an hour the senators chatted with each other, without any matter of public business being brought forward. Then Mr. Cullem rose and made a motion for a recess until half-past one; but, before the question had been put, a paper was handed to him, and on reading it he withdrew the motion for a re-cess and substituted one (which was agreed to) that the senate proceed to executive busiwhile the senate proceed to executive oussiness.

While the senate was sitting with closed doors, Mr. Butler offered a series of resolutions (which went over till tomorrow), declaring that the tenure of the president pro tempore does not expire at the meeting of congress after recess, the vice president having appeared to take the chair; that the presence of the vice president does not have the effect to vacate the office of president pro tempore, and that the office of president pro tempore shall be held at the pleasure of the senate.

A resolution authorizing the committee on epidemic diseases to sit during recess was offored and referred to the committee on contingent expenses.

CLEVELAND IN FLORIDA. His Principal Anxiety Seems to Be to Go to Tarpon Fishing.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 20.—Ex-President Cleveland and party arrived here at 7 o'clock this morning. Mr. Bayard and the ex-president were the only two up and dressed when the car was backed down on the Savannah, Florida and Western pier. It was too early in the morning for a demonstration, and very few people were stirring. Colonel J. E. Hart, president of the board of trade, and F.

W. Hawthorne, of the Times-Union, called at the car and were received by Cleveland and Bayard. They invited the party to pay Jacksonville a visit on their return from Cuba, and the invitation will undoubtedly be accepted. Cleveland is very anxious to TRY HIS HAND AT TARPON FISHING and inquired all about Charlotte harbor, the famous fishing grounds on the lower gulf coast. The party breakfasted in the car, and subsequently crossed the ferry to South Jackson-ville and proceeded in a private car to St. Augustine, accompanied by Captain Davidson, agent of the Savannab, Florida and Western railway, and Alfred Bishop dason, vice-president of the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West railroad. The train made the run in one hour. The party was met at the union station at St. Augustine by over 5,000 people, the Ponce De-Leon full band and a long line of carriages. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Flagler awaited the party and escorted them to the Fonce DeLeon hotel.

Cleveland was assigned.
THE PINK BRIDAL CHAMBER, the same room occupied by him last year. 11 o'clock the whole party was taken to inspect the bath Alcazar. This afternoon a drive of two hours was taken over the city. Tonight there was an informal reception at the hotel and a grand pyrotechnic display with electric effect. The party will proceed to Tampa tomorrow at noon, thence by ship to Cuba direct.

It had been the intention of the presi-dent ever since the election to tender him some dent ever since the election to tender him some important appointment, and this, it is understood, would have been the mission to England, but for the impression that the earnest advocacy of home rule for Ireland by the Tribune might render the relations of Mr. Reid with the tory government of Lord Salisbury less cordial than would be desirable.

A ROMANTIC INCIDENT IN MILWAUKEE Young Chicagoan United in Marriage With a Daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, of the Supreme Court.

MILWAUKEE, March 20 .- Miss Pauline Fuler, the fifth daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, was married here last night at the Kirby house by a justice of the peace. The groot was J. Matt Aubery, Jr., of Chicago, and it was a runaway match. When the 6:30 train arrived last evening, a petite woman was elped off the steps of the parlor car by a wellknit young man with a smooth face. The lady was closely veiled and was escorted to a carriage by her companion. They were driven at once to the Kirby house, where they registered. No room was assigned to them and the lady and her companion spent the early evenng in the hotel parlor. About 9 o'clock the young man came down stairs and informed the hotel clerk that he WANTED A JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

Inside of fifteen minutes, Justice Gregory arrived. There was a hurried consultation, and then the young man brought the blushing ung lady forward. The ceremony was a brief one, and the justice, who is a very saic old gentleman, put on no extra frills. He did not know that the bride was the daughter of the chief justice of the United States, and neither did any of those who were present outside of the contracting parties.

When the ceremony was concluded, the old justice called for witnesses, and two young men were captured in the biliard room, and ran to affix their signatures to the necessary document. The knot was legally and frinly

DESCRIPTION OF THE BRIDAL PARTY. Mrs. Aubery, nee Pauline Fuller, is nineeen years of age, highly educated and a remarkably handsome woman. J. Matt Aubery, Jr., is twenty-three years of age. He is a son of the general western agent of the Merchants' Dispatch fast freight line.

J. M. Aubery, Sr., has been a resident of Chicago since 1876, when he left Milwaukee. He is well known here, and Congressman Isaac Van Shaick is one of his most intimate Young Aubery is employed in his father's office in Chicago. He is a handsome young fellow. As near as can be learned the acquaintance of the bride and groom began about three years ago. Justice Fuller, who was then plain Lawyer Fuller, lived with his eight daughters on bake avenue, only a short distance from the home of young Aubery. The young people first met at a party given in the neighborhood. An attachment sprung up between them, and, when it became apparent, it was opposed by the Fullers. Miss Pauline declared, however, that

About this time Lawyer Fuller was named as chief justice of the United States. Mr. Fuller packed up and earried Miss Pauline away to Washington with the other Misses Fuller. About the first of last January Miss Pauline came to Chicago and has since remained in that city visiting friends of the

The story of the elopement of the young pair is an interesting one, and demonstrates that young Aubery has cut his eye teeth. To begin with he hired two detectives to shadow him and his affianced until they left Chicago. His object was to learn if any one was following them, and to prevent the young lady from being rescued. It was early in the afternoon when he met Miss Fuller, and

Burning of Paint and Oil Shops of the New Jersey Central Railroad. WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 20 .- The extensive car and paint shops of the Central railroad of New Jersey, at Ashley, about two miles from here, were destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The buildings were of brick, erected in 1867. They were immense structures, built in the form of a section of a round house. About 200 men were employed in these buildings. The fire spread with such fearful rapidity that absolutely nothing was saved. All the workmen lost their tools and there will be a loss in this respect of $10,000 or more, many of the men valuing their tools at $100 to $200 a kit. The buildings belong to the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company and were leased by the Central railroad of New Jersey. It is estimated that the loss on the buildings will reach fully $60,000. Property within the walls of the buildings, besides the property of employes already mentioned, were several baggage and smoking cars, two passenger coaches, freight cabooses, gondolas and coal cars. All of these were consumed. The loss on rolling stock alone will foot up to $300,000 and inhe loss on paints and materials will reach from $6,000 to $10,000. CHEER FROM CARNEGIE.

Observations on His Recent Trip to the South-A Great Future.

BALTIMORE, March 20.-The Manufacturers' Record, of this week, will publish a letter from Andrew Carnegie, giving his views upon the iron interests of the south, based upon his recent investigating tour. Mr. Carnegie states that the first feature which impressed him, was the general excellance of the plants in the south. The modern blast furnace is the product of evolution. Pionneers in the business have had to build and rebuild these. Our southern brethren have reaped the advantage and have become possessed all alone of a modern type. This remark applies also to the machinery in the mines and the mode of opening, handling facilities and so forth. All is of the latest pattern. The character of the coal, iron ore and limestone, and the ease and cost of mining are all better, he says, than he had expected to find.

Upon the much disputed question of the cost of pig iron production in Alabama, Mr. Carnegie says that the ten dollars per ton for foundry iron, which is the highest grade, is a liberal estimate with good management, and for a series of years some of the best located and best managed furnaces may be able to do even better than this figure. Ability to manufacture at this price must give the southern manufacturers a LARGE MARKET FOR THEIR PIG. When the next stage comes, and they seek o manufacture pig into more advanced forms. I believe it will be done by converting pig into steel by means of bessemer, and the open hearth basic process, and I advised our southern friends when there to make some experiments looking to this desirable end.

As was to have been expected, speculation has entered more or less into this southern field. Some ill advised enterprises have been undertaken, and considerable reaction may take place, but this is only froth upon the wave of solid wealth and legitimate manufacturing prudently carried on in Alabama, and ther districts will meet its due reward. In closing this letter Mr. Carnegie says that he regards the south as Pennsylvania's most formidable industrial enemy in the future. In referring to the INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY THROUGHOUT THE SOUTH and the investments that northern capitalists are now making in that section, the Manufac turers' Record says: "Never was the union of northern and southern sources in the development of this section better illustrated than in the fact that New England men are to build a great city at Shelby, Ala., where 1,200 people are now living, having as a nucleus the Shelby furnaces, railroad shops, etc., because it was from Shelby ore that the Shelby furnaces made the iron for the plates that covered the Confederate gunboat Tennessee, whose armored ides withstood the incessant cannonading of sides withstood the incessant cannonading of Farragut's fleet at Mobile bay during the memorable naval engagement of August 4, 1864, as few iron gunboats have ever done. In this same town New England capital, backed by New England brains, is to build a great industrial city. The north and south are no longer against each other, but uniting to develop the wonderful resources of this country."

Birmingham, Ala., March 20.—[Special.]—T. A. Greene, who was an applicant for the position of postmaster, returned this evening from Washington, and is boiling over with anger and indignation. Greene was postmaster here under Grant, Haves and Arthur, and has been a faithful worker for his party. He went to Washington a week ago, confident of securing the appointment, but says his claims were not even considered. When introduced to Wanaeven consuered. When introduced to Wana-maker, Mr. Greene says the postmaster gen-eral informed him very curtly that he was "too old" to fill the place. Greene says Har-rison's will be a mugwump administration, and that faithful republicans will be given no show. He is very telliment of the show. He is very indignant at the treatment he received in Washington.

LOUISVILLE, March 20.-The prisoners in the jail at Jeffersonville made a wholesale at empt to escape last evening at dusk. Ed. Powell, a river pirate, had sawed out several pars of the large cage which surrounds the cells and thus set nearly a dozen prisoners at liberty, two of them being murderers. Once outside of the cage it was easy work to get out on the roof by means of an open skylight and thence the prisoners intended to climb down to the ground by an iron pipe.

FIRING ON THE PRISONERS. A little girl saw the men coming out on the roof and gave the alarm to the sheriff, who is also jailer. Sheriff Hay seized a revolver and rdered the prisoners to return to their cells, but they refused and Powell slid down the pipe and escaped. The other prisoners were huddled together under the skylight and the sheriff, to frighten them he said, fired at them. Dick Jones received the shot just back of the left shoulder and fell and the others then returned to their cells. The bullet passed into Jones's left lung, and the doctor thought last night the wound was fatal. Jones is a housebreaker and his name is an assumed one. Powell has not been recaptured as yet.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 20.-[Special.]-On petition of Miss Fannie Davenport, backed by the Memphis delegation in the legislature, overnor Taylor today pardoned Charles Talbott, who stole Miss Davenport's diamonds while night clerk at the Gayoso hotel, in Memphis in 1887, and was sent up for six years. Talbott sent a message to Miss Davenport yesterday by a Mrs. Fetler, who appeared at the capitol this morning, and wanted the pardon which had been handed to Warden Pearcy. She became excited, and accused Dick Oldum, who was standing by, of taking the pardon himself in order that he might give it to Davenport. She became very angry and threatened to cowhide everybody concerned, but Governor Taylor succeeded in paccifying her. Talbott was released at noon and called on Miss Davenport, who handed him a roll of bills amounting to several hundred dollars and gave him some friendly advice. phis in 1887, and was sent up for six years.

And Thinks the Time Has Come to Propose a Substitute for the Gladstone Bill London, March 20 .- Mr. Chamberlain, in a etter to his electors, says he thinks the time has arrived when the government should prove has arrived with the government should prove its readiness to propose a substitute for Glad-stone's rejected Irish bill. He thinks that if a large and final land purchase bill were passed, with the consent of all parties, it would immensely lessen the difficulty of giv-ing Ireland a liberal local government measure. This matter he says, will be openly discussed at the coming Easter conference

In Accord with America LONDON, March 20.-The blue book on Samoan affairs was issued today. It contains 356 dispatches, the dates ranging from April 29, 1888, to February 28, 1889. The dispatches show that England has been throughout in cordial accord with America, and that sh cordial accord with America, and that she declined ta accede to Germany's request for assistance and co-operation in the restoring of order in Samea until she had learned the American government's views on the subject. On January 29th, last, Lord Salisbury complained to Count Von Hatzfeldt, German ambassador at London, concerning Bismarck's bassador at London, concerning Bismarck's statements in the reichstag, that in Samoa Germany and England were "advancing hand in hand." The British prime minister said that the views of the two countries were ident-ical as far as the future government of Samoa was concerned, but not otherwise.

Welcoming Antoine to Paris,
Paris, March 20.—M. Antoine was enthusiastically greeted on his arrival here this even ing. Five thousand persons were assembled at the depot, and there were frequent shouts of "Vive Antoine!" "Vive la France!" "Vive la Republique!" etc. There were several deputies and members of the municipal council present. Delegates of various patriotic societies cordially welcomed Antoine, who, in the course of his reply, said that to Alsace was due all the honor of his reception. The crowd was so demonstrative in welcoming Antoine that great difficulty was experienced in passing through the streets. A banquet will be given to Antoine at the Grand hotel Friday.

DODGING THE SOLDIERS.

The Oklahoma Boomers Threaten Trouble I the Soldiers are Not Withdrawn.

TOPEKA, Kas., March 20.—There are at Fort Reno some 600 regulars, and in that neighbor-hood are 2,000 or 3,000 boomers. Military operations at this end of the line are conducted by Captain Woodson, of the cavalry. Lieutenant Macomb has command further Lieutenant Macomb has command furthers south, where there are many more boomers near Purcell, a city of 2,000 people. Settlers have been going into the forbidden lands and blazing claims they intend to pre-empt when the territory is opened, which, private advices here say, will be in thirty days, by a proclamation to be issued on Thursday by the president. Even this invasion is regarded as unlawful, and the invaders were instructed to desist. Day by day they have been going out and marking the best homesteads along the stream on the uplands and everywhere, and when attacked by the troops they fled to the timber, and as they could outrun the soldiers mber, and as they could outrun the soldiers

They denounce the clubbing in Cruch county yesterday as an outrage and say they will notify the United States authorities that if they do not furnish the protection demanded, the boomers will take it into their own hands and wreak summary vegeance on the soldiers. The former are generally well provided with Winchesters and arms of the latest approved pattern, with plenty of ammunition. There are many reckless and desperate men among them. The authorities here fear that there will be bloodshed before the row is over.

here fear that there will be bloodshed before the row is over.

In view of the unexpected and threatening tern of affairs reported, it is a matter of discussion among officials and old, residents what will be done in case the opening of the strip is followed by a reign of terror, and, whether the preclamation once issued, the president or congress would have the power to withdraw it in order to stem the tide of settlers and prevent bloodshed. Every day makes the critical aspect of Oklahoma affairs more threatening.

THE CRY FOR AID.

Thousands of Chinamen Starving to Death-An Appeal to the Charitable. WASHINGTON, March 20.-The United States consul-general at Shanghai has informed the state department, at the request of the Shanghai committee of the North China relief fund, of the distress existing over a large area of China, the result of floods in th Yellow river sections, and of droughts in portions of the provinces of Kiang Su and Auhoud. The committee desires to invite the Auhoul. The committee desires to invite the charitable people of the world to respond to its request for funds. Thousands are starving and dying from exposure in northern China. Relief has already been received from America and England, but more is needed. Until the spring crops are gathered, the famine will

Why is it so many suffer from rheumatism, aches, pains, kidney diseases, liver compolants, heart affection, etc.? It is sinaply because they will not come and be healed. All diseases begin from a want of iron in the blood. This want of iron makes the blood thin, watery and impure. Impure blood carries weakness and distress to every part of the body. Supply this lack of iron by using Brown's Iron Bitters, and you will soon find yourself enjoying perfect freedom from aches, pains and general ill-health.

TARVER'S REMINISCENCES

Of the Great Harrison Freshet Forty-Eigh Years Ago. From the Sandersville, Ga., Herald.

On Monday last, that genial gentleman and honored citizen, Hon. E. A. Tarver, of Jeffer-son, made a pleasant call at the Herald office. In course of conversation the judge remarked: "Forty-eight years ago today was the time of the great Harrison freshet; oh, that was a memorable time."

"Well, judge, what was the extent of the damage in this section?" Not a bridge was left standing in the county, the bridge over Williamson swamp, abutment and all was swept entirely away. Every mill was washed away.

"How rar was it to the nearest mill left standing?"

"About twenty miles. The mill at Mc-Kenney's, near Coleman's lake in Emanuel county, was the nearest. The people used very extensively then little iron hand mills, that would grind about a bushel an hour, and those having them would let their neighbors come and grind corn; the meal was very coarse, but the people made out on it."

"The bridge being washed away over Williamson swamp, as it divided a plantation, and was on an important highway, a flat was placed there and used by the public for a year.

"The roads, too, were terribly washed in great holes eight and ten feet deep. There are great washes near my house of that depth to be seen yet, where the road was turned around it."

"And you were living at the same place

"And you were living at the same place then, judge, where you now live?"
Oh, yes, at the same place."

"You remember, then, a great mahy interesting incidents of those old days. Have you noticed what good judgment was displayed by our prominent pioneer settlers?
"There was old Governor Irwin, that settled in that fine section, Irwin's X Roads, old Colonel Richard Werthen, at Werthen, etc. Well, they had the choice of the country, and in the earliest settlement men could go and in the carliest settlement men could go and locate a desirable place and run around it and enter it at a very low figure. Governor Lee astonished the public today by allowing a negro couple to be married in his office in the capitol and then presenting the groom with a pardon which saved him from condicate the metallic desirable and the metallic desirable an groom with a pardon which saved him from spending his wedding day in the penitentiary. This is the first wedding ceremony ever performed in the Virginia capitol, and it is a singular circumstance that the couple should have been blacks. The contracting parties are Robert Bossieux and Mary Brown. The groom elect had deceived Mary under promise of marriage and had been sentenced to the penitentiary for this deception. The introductory overtures were by the governor himself. Addressing the condemned elect he said:

"I sent for you because I understood you wanted to marry Mary and she wants to marry wanted to marry Mary and she wants to marry you. Do you want to marry her?"

Bossleux: Yes, sir.

The Governor: Mr. Yarbrough says that you have been a good hand and he will give you employment again, and I hope you will be a good man hereafter.

The governor, turning to the parson, said: "All right; go ahead." The parson then married the couple. At the conclusion of the ceromony the governor handed Bossieux his pardon, saying:
"I give you this as a bridal gift."

The bride and groom, both black as the ace of spades, then left rejoicing. They thought they had enjoyed a rare distinction in being married in the capitol building of Virginia, in the living presence of Fitzhugh Lee, and amid the pictures of great Virginians, such as the pictures of great Virginians, such as Patrick Henry, Jefferson, Edmund Randolph, William Henry Harrison, and many others of "Its a big day for de nigger, dis is," was the thought of more than one darky. It is said that this was the way the bluff and hearty Fitz Lee wanted to show the country at large that he was a friend of the black man.

Mons. Salvini's Mammoth Novelties

This attraction is announced as a wonderful thing. The Charleston News and Courier of last Tuesday said:

Professor Philippe Salvini's combination of trick animals, which performed at the Academy of Music last night, is certainly one of the most anusing aggregations of zoological oddities ever seen in Charleston. It is simply great. The sagacity of the animals is really marvelous. It combines such a variety of excellences in this line that it will amuse both grown people and children. As to the latter, the prediction is made that they will actually go wild with delight. There were a good many children present last night, and they fairly screamed with hysterical delight. They have a dude monkey at the show that is as funny as he can be. He is a clown, who winks and dances and plays the queerest tricks on the gonis and does and ponies, andever on i Professor Salvini. It is a$1,000,000 monkey if he is worth a cent. Then they have she monkeys that wear court dresses with red slik bustles, poke bounets, who go riding in $10,000 carriages. Then they have cases in court in which a monkey judge reads French law out of an Irish account book. Then they have as swell carriage party in which sn invalid monkey lady takes an airing, drawn by poodle dogs which are driven by a monkey coachman with a real monkey "Tige" sitting on the tender. To tell the truth about it. He accomplished the feat and is now a sadder but wiser person. The balls stuck in his mouth and all efforts to dislodge the same proved futile until finally a surgeon was called in, who, in order to get them outrwas compelled to cut a slit in his mouth on each side. The other fellow paid his bet.

NOT A LOST ART.

E. WASHINGTON HAMMOND CONTRO-VERTS OSCAR WILDE.

How the Judge and His Friends Have Become Provided with Fish Hooks for the Spring Campaign. From the Griffin, Ga., News.

The down train being a few hours later than usual yesterday morning, the crowd who sit around the ordinary's office had about exhausted the usual subjects of conversation; they had gotten off the usual diurnal jokes on Bailiff Little, and had discussed very elabo rately Oscar Wilde's recent article on cay of lying. Judge Hammond came in, and, unconscious of what they had been discussing, mediately proceeded to relieve himself as "Well, I wish to tell you something very strange. It is a good joke, but I don't know whether the joke is on my wife, or our baby, or the man who sells fish-hooks, or myself, or on our old hen.

"But let me tell you first, that we have the smartest three-year-old baby that ever wa born.

"Well, this 'little darling' was, as usual, bent on mischief, got a bowl and spoon and some meal, and set out to feed the old hen. On her way, while making up the dough, she happened to pick up a box of my fish hooks and she stirred them into the dough and she fed them to the old hen, and just as she was finishing this piece of elegant work, her mother came upon her, and was in much distress for the old hen, but Shooter demanded more hooks, and I expect her mother would have given her more, but they were all in the old hen's craw. How could she have refused the 'little darling' anything? At supper time I "little darling" anything? At supper time I was told what a smart thing the baby had done was told what a smart thing the baby had done and I thought it was smart, too, and a good joke on the old hen, but expected to find her dead in the morning. I seemed to have an idea that the old hen would have a sort of a catching sensation in her stomach that night sure and certain, and when I dozed off to sleep, I was thinking of the first sentence I ever learned to read in the old blue back spelling book—"She fed the old hen"—but when the morning came she was singing her matin song and scratching for the early worm as if nothing had ever been the matter with her digestion. "A day or so after this occurrence the old

"A day or so after this occurrence the old hen stole a nest in a quiet, secluded place and commenced to lay her daily egg. She had laid fourteen and was just commencing to sit when she was discovered. It was very cold, but my wife decided to let her sit, thinking how nice it would be to have a fine brood of early chick-it would be to have a fine brood of early chickens to fry in the early spring.

"At the end of three weeks when the eggs should have been hatched, there were no little chicks to gladden the old hen's heart, but still she hovered over her nest, expecting every day to hear the chirp of the little ones through the broken shells. Four weeks passed, but no egg pipped, no chick cried, still the old hen sat, but her hope grew faint. She got so tired of sitting in one position that she would leave her nest each day and run around and wallow in the dust, and pick her feathers and eat her dinner and take something to drink, and then dinner and take something to drink, and then go back and take her seat, to warm the expected little ones through their shells. Five weeks completed their course, but alas, it was but to add another week of sad disappointment for the silent sitter, and her heart sunk within hear of the same to drop from ment for the silent sitter, and her heart sunk within her and tears were seen to drop from her eyes, but still she sat and waited. At length I told the cook to put the hen in a coop and shut her in, and to throw the old eggs away. But the old cook was not too old or too black to have curiosity; so she concluded to shake those eggs to see if they had chickens in them. She found that they were solid and nothing shook in them, and she brought them to me and I shook one and it seemed to have some hard substance in it and I cracked it open, and to my amazement, I found that it was packed and jammed with bright, new fish hooks. I then cracked open the remaining was packed and jammed with bright, new fish hooks. I then cracked open the remaining thirteen, and found that each was packed with elegant new hooks, each shell containing a different size. "About two weeks after this, the hen was found dead, and a fish hook was hanging out of her mouth, attached to a silk fishing line, and I commenced to pull at it, and there seemed to be no end to it and I continued to pull and wind it on a ball, until she was completely unrayeled, leaving nothing but her very superior quality, being elegantly twisted and is as strong as a violin string, and and there are just 1,999 yards of it. I fould just as well said that there were 2,000 yard, but then you don't suppose that I would tell a lie for one yard of fishing line, do you? I can't account for how the slik line was in the hen, unless it was because she ate so many silk worms last spring, and when they got mixed up in her stomach, they began to spin around and twist the line. Now, as all the hooks fed to the hen were of one size, some incredulous person would wish to know how there were fourteen different sizes of hooks in the eggs shells. This is easy enough to account for shells. This is easy enough to account for when we remember that the hen was fourteen days in laying the eggs, and of course each egg was one day older than the one which suc-

The few defenders of Oscar Wilde's position acknowledged the error of their way and took back all that they had said. It was unani-mously requested that the editor of the News endeavor to find Colonel Wilde's address and forward him a copy of the paper containing Judge Hammond's pleasing little tale.

Why Mrs. Krzywoszynski Preferred John Jwinjinjynsky to Her Husband.

From the New York World.

John Krzywoszynski is suing his wife John Krzywoszynski, nee Czysnersky, for divorce, charging that she cloped with John Jwinjinjynsky, a nineteen year old youth. Lawyer Frederick C. Steffen has tackled the case and hopes to pull it through without losing the use of his tongue. Mr. Krzywoszynski lives at No. 1½ Rivington street, and young Loba Jwinjinjingkr jived with his nagents in John Jwinjinjynsky lived with his parents in the same house. When the husband, who is infatuated with his handsome wife, to whom he has been wedded fifteen years, tried to in-duce her to return to him, she refused on the ground, it is alleged, that she thought her new lover had a much easier name to pronounce, as it is made up in sections and can be taken apart. When Judge Lawrence attempted to call the case off the calendar yesterday his face grew purple. As soon as he recovered he appointed M. E. Goodheart as referee. Mr. Goodheart has gone into training.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I used five bottles and have not seen a sick day since." G. W. SLOAN, Milton, Mass.

"Hoou's Sarsaparilla purified my blood, gave me strength, and overcame the headache and dizziness, Hood's Sarsaparilla to others whose blood is thin or impure, and who feel worn out or run down." LUTHER NASON, Lowell, Ma s.

"I take Hood's 'Sarsaparilla every year as a spring 319 Bridge street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is original with and true purities which have been accumulating for months only of this popular medicine. If you wish to prove or even years, are liable to manifest themselves and this, buy a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and measure seriously affect the health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is its contents. You will find it to hold 100 teaspoonfuls. Now read the diffections, and you will find that the average dose for persons of different ages is less than a teaspoonful. This is certainly conclusive evidence of the peculiar strength and economy of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Give it a trial this spring.

Purifies the Blood

'My little boy was so badly afflicted with scroful a that the whole top of his head was one complete mass of matter. I doctored with him two years and found no relief, and then I heard of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I gave him one bottle, and there was a most wonderful improvement. I then got one bottle more and that cured him completely. I would not be without Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house. I give it to my children for a spring medicine."

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC has more friends among the ladies than any other class. Its effect is wonderful on those who are broken down in health.

Switt's special has cured me of a malignant breaking out on my leg, which caused intolerable pain. It was called Eczema by the doctors—four of whom treated me with no relief. I candidly confess that I owe my present good health to S. S. S., which in my estimation is invaluable as a blood remedy.

MISS JULIA DEWITT,
2227 N. 10th St., St. Louis, Mo.

I was the victim of the worst Catarrh that I ever heard of. I was entirely deaf in one ear, and all the inside of my nose, including part of the bone, sloughed off. No treatment benefitted me, and physicians said I would never be any better. I took S. S. S. as a last resort, and it has entirely cured me. I have been well four years, and no sign of return of the dreadful disease. Mrs. Josephine Politik.

Due West, S. C.

I wish to proclaim to the world what S. S. S. has done for me. For the past ten years I have been troubled with dreadful eruptions on my face, caused by ivy poison. I was under the Creatment of a number of physicians, but obtained no relief. I tried the best "blood purifiers" h. n. market, but without avail. I had given up in despair, thinking I could not be cured; but happening to read the Detroit Journal, I noticed S. S. S. advertised and red Mrs. Bradley's testimonial. I thought I would try this remedy. I have taken eight bottles, and there is not a spot on my face. It has also cured me of chronic catarth. I have never enjoyed better health than at present. I feel like a new person. I cannot find words to express my appreciation of its merits, and the gratitude I feel for the glad tidings that came to me through the reading of that advertisement. Wishing you every success, I am Yours truly, Josie Owen, Montpelier, O.

BOARD WANTED. WANTED BOARD FOR THREE CHILDREN, within twenty miles of Atlanta. Address X. Z. this office. AN ILLINOIS LAND TITLE MANIPU-

LATOR.

Who Puts Up in Macon, Only to Be Pounced Upon by a Pinkerton Detective-Other Interesting News.

Macon, Ga., March 20.-[Special.]-"R. H. Robbins, Illinois," is the way it was written yesterday afternoon on the Hotel Lanier reg-

His arrival and departure was so quiet that only one or two in the city knew the object of his visit, and one of these parties gave the story to The Constitution's correspondent as told by Robbins himself. Robbins stated that he was a member of Pinkerton's Chicago Detective agency, and had come to Macon on the track of a man named Scott, and who registered at the Hotel Lanier on March 8th as 'R. G. Matthews, Illinois.' Robbins said that Matthews had forged land titles in Illinois by which he had obtained $6,000, and then fled Robbins followed Scott, alias Matthews, to this city. Matthews did not stay at the Hotel Lanier longer than two days, and then went to other quarters in the city, and has been keep-ing company ever since with a certain female, hose name Robbins would not reveal to THE Constitution's informant, Mr. Ed. Elder, the popular clerk at the Hotel Lanier.

About 7 o'clock last night Robbins arrested

Matthews at the house of his female acquaintance, and left with him for Illinois on the 10:35 p. m. train. When arrested, nineteen hundred dollars was found on Matthews's person. Last night about 8 o'clock The Consti-TUTION's correspondent saw Clerk Elder and Robbins talking at the Hotel Lanier, and Robhins was then telling Elder the story of the arrest, and when Elder called THE CONSTITU TION'S man up to hear the recital, Robbins | The Convicted Woman Goes for the Witwould talk no further, and said he was not seeking newspaper notoriety. By diligent inquiry, The Constitution's representative to day learned the above. Robbins kept his movements very quiet.

stitution He Founded.

Macon, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The Macon letter in The Constitution of today recorded the arrival in Macon last night of Mr. W. H. Appleton, the great book publisher of New York and benefactor. Mr. Appleton will remain in Macon several days, possibly leaving Friday or Saturday.

Today Mr. Appleton accompanied by his daughter, Miss Appleton, and Miss Travers, of New York, visited the Appleton church home in this city which was built and endowed in 1888 by Mr. Appleton. It is a handsome two story brick building, containing fifteen or twenty rooms, and a large lot of land attached which is used for gardening purposes. It is under the control of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia and is in charge of Sister Margaret and her assistants. At present there are twenty-three orphan children at the home. Only girls are received within the home. They are given early religious and elementary training, and after reaching suitable ages positions are secured for them in good families. The home is a special charge and pride of Bishop Beckwith.

Bishop Beckwith.

Today the children gladly greeted their kind and liberal benefactor, when he called at the home to see them.

Every year Mr. Appleton makes a contribution to the children, remembering them generously, especially at Christmas. Such men as Appleton make the world beautiful and humanity sublime.

THE SLAYER OF BRYANT. The Tinner, Clark, on Trial for His Life in Bibb Superior Court.

Macon, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Quite an interesting case has occupied the attention of Bibb superior court today. It was the nur-der trial of William C. Clark, a tinner, for the murder of John W. Bryant, an aged carpenter, both white men.

The tragedy happened on Fourth street, be-tween Cherry and Mulhars.

tween Cherry and Mulberry, on January 4th. Both men were drunk. Bryant was sitting on a bench on the sidewalk, in front of Dickey's saloen, quiet and saying nothing to any one. Clark entered the saloen and said to Dickey: "Now watch me; I am going out there and do up that old man." Bryant had done or said nothing to Clark to provoke any assault. Clark walked out the saloen and struck Bryant a fearful blow under the eye with a bunch of gas pipe coupling, and Bryant fell senseless and bleeding to the earth. son? Jackson? Seems to me that I have heard of the place, but I can't think just where it is." Many a reader of this article will make such an exclamation as the above, and for the information of all such, let me say that Jackson is the county site of Butts, and is situated on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. That is, this is the nearest railroad. Somebody who was connected with the building of the road bought a large tract of land around the proposed site for the depot and the road was then built so as to make the town lots of the purchase sell to the best advantage. This arrangement throws the depot a long distance from the business, but it had the effect of causing the town to spread, and of about twelve hundred, and the people here say that they regard it only as an infant now, which they intend shall grow to its full statire. You may be sure that Jackson will never rank amongst the dead towns, because its people have determined to stand shoulder to shoulder in pushing its fortunes. THE CON-STITUTION has done more towards town-buildng than any paper in the south, and knows that when a people unite and determine to be peard from, success is already assured. The people of Jackson know that there are other owns and cities out in the cold world, but that there is no other place "like home," and that its prosperity is the one thing which every man, woman and child is willing to work for.

ITS COMMERCIAL IMPORTANCE.

The business of the town is astonishing to a stranger. The merchants seem to have agreed that the old style of "small sales and large profits" should be abandoned, and having reversed this maxim exactly, they are rewarded by a business which a much larger place would be proud to have. Meat and other leading articles are sold here at Atlanta and Macon prices, and the merchants say that the increased business makes up for the diminished profits. If all other Georgia towns would Indian Springs is one of the oldest health resorts in the state, and well deserves its great popularity. larity.

The crowning flery of the town is its mag-nificent school building filled with one hun-dred and sixty happy boys and girls. The building itself is a worthy monument to the progressive spirit of the people. No bonds were issued, but six thousand dollars was raised by private subscription, and tuition is not allowed to cost more than one dollar per month. The house is owned by a stock company, and large dividends are being paid, not in money, but in the thorough education of the children. While everything has been moving along smoothly so far, trouble is expected in the near future. If there was no funds in the treasury this thing would probably go on indefinitely and the citizens would be compelled to support two councils, but there is about $150 in the hands of the Lowe party, and Mayor Sheppard has demanded that this be at once turned over to him and his party. It is sincerely hoped that one crowd or the other will withdraw before the spring taxes are collected, as the average citizen would be double taxed and the violators of the law would catch sheel from two recorders.

Dr. Bellamy, who originated the ilbrary in the state lunatic asylum here, in conversation to-day said:

"About eighteen months ago I published an appeal in several papers for contributions of second-hand books to start a library for the asylum. Other papers commended the idea and lent me their aid in extending my appeals, which brought us contributions from all over the country. Thus encouraged, I sent letters to northern publishing houses, many of which responded liberally with books. I kept a record of all contributors and published their names and their contributions. These published acknowledgements were seen by others who were encouraged to do likewise, in consequence of which we got contributions from all parts of the union. Now we have quite a resdectable library, but not yet large enough. "Before the establishment of this library the patients had no means of passing away the time but to pace the corridors, or roam the grounds, dwell upon and marmur at their said fate, they now congregate in the library, enjoy themselves reading, and unless one could be on the spot and see how they enjoy it, it would be difficult to conceive how much more they are comparatively satisfied and contented, and that is also an incalculable advantage in the treatment of their mental maladies. UNCLE JOE WALKER A DeKalb Veteran Who is Free From Small Vices.

From the DeKalb, Ga., Chronicle. Old Uncle Joe Walker says that he is eighty years old and has not tasted coffee in seventy-five years, nor tobacco in seventy years, nor of any in toxicating liquors in fifty years. He does not, how-ever, attribute his total abstinence from coff-e and tobacco to his own good management, but to the management of his parents, and tells us the following story of how he came not to use them. He says that when he was a boy five years old that his mother had occasion to give him a dose of easter oil, a thing that is very common for mothers to on, a timing that is very common for monters to do now days, and that she attempted to give it in coffee, and it made him vomit most profusely, and he became so disgusted with coffee, that he has not tasted it since. As to the tobacco he says that in his boyhood days that flat tobacco, as it was usually called, was rarely seen in this country, and every farmer raised his own leaf, and his father, who lived forty miles from Augusta and went there twice a vear to get supplies, such as he went there twice a year to get supplies, such as he did not raise on the farm, on one occasion carried him with him, and knowing that Joe was a dear lover of ginger cake, when he was done trading bought him one, and when they had driven cut of bought him one, and when they had driven cut of town and struck camp for night, and while his father was attending to his stock he called him and said: "Joe there is a ginger cake in my coat pocket that I bought for you in town. He went to where the coat was hanging, and in his eagerness to get the cake didn't notice that it was in the pocket where his father carried his tobacco, took out the cake and began to eat it, tobacco, trumbs and all, and very soon he began to grow sick and sicker, and that night he thought he was the sickest by that had ever been. #### Why Not Come South?

Shortly before congress adjourned the farmers' alliance of Nebraska caused to be submitted to that body a very interesting and instructive petition. The petition of the Nebraska state alliance complains to congress that the homes of the farmers of Nebraska are mortgaged to the amount of $150,000,000. On this sum over $10,000,-000 of interest is paid annually, and this ense sum is paid to people outside the

The towns are badly in debt, and the working people are in a condition as nearly approaching bankruptcy as poor people can The remedy for all this, the New Orans Times-Democrat thinks, is for the mers of Nebraska to emigrate to the south, and the suggestion bears a significance which we fear will not be fully appreciated by Nebraskans.

The seven wonders of the world have been written about and described ten thousand times. The eighth wonder is the greatest wonder of all, and it consists in the fact that men supposed to be in possession of all their senses will emigrate to a section where the climate during eight months of the year is simply intolerable, and where the returns of labor are so insignificant that the farmers are compelled to mortgage their lands in order to meet current expenses. This is the condition of affairs in a comparatively new country.

A great many mortgages have been laid in the south, but these are neither the result of the climate nor the soil. They are the results of dire poverty brought about by the war, and they represent that period which ground an industrious and a thrifty people

The point the Times-Democrat makes, and it is a good one, is that these Nebraskans who are suffering from an intolerable climate ought to come to the south, where they will find a fertile soil, a genial climate and a perfect situation. The suggestion of our contemporary is a good one. It follows on the heels of suggestions made in these columns, and it is worthy the attention of the farmers of the northwest, who have to fight the rigors of an inhospitable climate.

A Great City's Expansion.

The concentration of the cities of New York, Brooklyn, and all the outlaying suburbs belonging to New York state into one great municipal government appears to be a thing of the near future.

The population of the territory of the proposed metropolis, which will be second size only to London, is now about 3,000,-000, or 1,000,000 less than that of London. If the scheme is carried out, New York will thus become the world's second city.

The scheme is one which has been frequently agitated, but which, until now, has never appeared to have much chance of materialization. Sentiment, however, in its favor has been steadily growing, and several prominent New York papers and many well known citizens think that the undertaking is now in a fair way to suc-summation is a matter of universal interest. The several cities are, indeed, except in the matter of government, one great metropolis, but the municipal union of them all would be of mutual benefit and strength to each of them. New York and Brooklyn are as closely united, except as to munic pal control, as are the divisions of London made by the Thames, or of Paris, on both sides of the Seine.

Once next to London, as the second greatest city, it would not be many years before American enterprise would put New York at the head of the list of the great citles of the world.

Then America would be proud, indeed, of her metropolis.

A Woman's Fight Against Progress Mrs. Sorenson, of Manistee, Michigan, is a plucky woman, but she has been downed in her fight against a railroad.

It seems that the Northwestern decided to run its track into Manistee, and the tracklayers began work in front of Mrs. Soren son's house. The good woman ordered the men to leave, but they laughed at her. Then she took her rocking chair and knitting work, and sat down on the right of way. The railroaders picked her up and set her on one side of the track, but she returned with her chair and some blankets and camped out.

The situation became serious. The wo man had her meals carried to her, and remained at her post day and night. The track was laid each way from her camp, and in order to connect the links the company finally had her arrested and sent to jail.

Mrs. Sorenson invoked the aid of the law She got out of jail, and recovered $200 for false imprisonment; but it was too latethe railroad was built!

Probably there has never been such an unequal fight since Mrs. Partington got her dander up and tried to sweep back the Atlantic ocean. Mrs. Sorenson and her rocking chair could not stop the on-rolling wave of progress. If people do not like the iron horse and other factors of civilization they must move out of the way.

Not a Democratic Present.

Editor Keating, of the Memphis Appeal was visited a few nights ago by a number of gentlemen who presented him with a set of the works of Henry George.

The Appeal announces that this present s a testimonial to the efforts of its editor in 'support of democratic doctrine," and to the earnest efforts of that paper for the democratic party in the last campaign.

The spokesman of the committee in delivering the token of appreciation to Editor Keating said:

We have come here for the purpose of presenting to you this set of books, by Henry George. The books are presented by sixty gentlemen who entertain for you the highest regard as a man, a citizen, and the editor of a great democratic paper. We weekled watched your course during the last campaign in the fight for free trade, etc.

Editor Keating accepted the gift in appropriate remarks, and the pleasant little gathering dispersed.

If the Memphis Appeal conducted a 'fight for free trade'' during the last campaign it did not do so in keeping with the platform of the democratic party. Tariff eform and free trade are entirely different things, and if the Appeal has slid off on the free trade idea, pure and simple, it cannot longer consider itself a representative democratic organ.

It will be a cold day when the demo cratic party commits itself to the free trade heresy and the socialistic teachings of Henry George, and now that Editor Keating has been provided with a full set of the works of that pleasing but misdirecting genius, we trust that he will pause long enough in reading them to observe that the views contained therein do not represent the present policy or the tendency of the democratic party.

The democratic party is far from favoring free trade, and if Editor Keating pro poses to be a democrat he should steer clear of its breakers.

A Strange Story.

Some three years ago Mr. Frederick Nourse, of Boston, took the train in Lon don for Liverpool, where he intended embarking for home. He had cabled to his wife that he was coming, and had told his friends goodbye at the station. But he never reached Boston, nor even Liverpool, and from that day to this his people have not been able to trace him.

Nourse was young, wealthy, happily mar ried and in good health. His disappearance created a sensation, and nothing was eft undone to find him. The Endicotts of Massachusetts and other influential families were his relatives, and they aided Mrs. Nourse in her efforts to find her husband But it was to no purpose, and as the years rolled on everybody gave up the missing man as dead.

There was no theory to fit the case. It rould have been difficult to kidnap Nourse between London and Liverpool, or murder him, and it was not likely that he would run away, or temporarily lose his mind and wander off.

The other day a young woman called at a hotel in London where Mr. Nourse had stopped, and showed the landlord a photograph of the lost man. She told the landord that Nourse was not dead, but was confined under another name in a lunation asylum near Cardiff. More than this she would not tell until she could see Mrs. Nourse, but being unable to procure her address she went away.

When this startling information was cabled over the water Mr. Nourse's fatherin-law proceeded to throw cold water upon the story. He said a thorough search had been made, and he was convinced with everybody else that Nourse was dead.

The public will not be so easily satisfied.

Nourse may be alive and in an asylum. There is no evidence of his death beyond the supposition that he would have turned up if still alive. It is possible that in some way he lost his mental balance, left the train, fell into the hands of ruffians, and when picked up could not tell his name nor any papers that would estabshow lish hieidentity. It is also possible that he was kidnapped be held for ransom, and that brutal treatment caused him to lose his reason. Granting the probability of his death, there is still no reason why the young woman's story should not be investigated. It ought not to be a very difficult matter to overhaul the lunatic asylums near Cardiff and find out whether one of them contains Frederick Nourse.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Clayton and Dawson Tragedies EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Two recent tragedies in the south, the one a political assassinati the other not less shocking but of a personal natur ne reflections which you will perhaps giv is useless to deny that the killing of John M. Clayton was the result of political differences. The de tails are read by millions of American citizens capitalists, manufacturers, farmers and laborers many of them looking to the south for investment or homes. The injury to the south in their minds caunot be estimated. "Is there," they inquire, "an unwritten law in the south that forbids a free exercise of judgment of which the penalty is social obstracism or a fate similar to Clayton?" A crime except in some cases of insanity, can scarcely eve be said to stand by itself, but is traceable to c tions precedent and often to a laxity of public sentiment. The press, more powerful than ever today in its teachings and influence, cannot be true to the real interests of the south and its own high trust, without making a persistent effort to weep away the intolerence in political matters too often exists in southern communities which is acting as a blight and mildew to our seion of the union whose waste places should be nade, with inflowing capital and population, to clossom as the rose and bum with a thousand new varied industries. This may dized in our day by a public lation of liberality and tolerence; it will be edlessly and indefinitely postponed by sentiments f intolerance and preindice.

A word about Editor Dawson. However rash his ction, his death was that of a martyr to a cause which all virtuous hearts hold dear, and his prin ipal and motive were worthy of the best days of chivalry. Woman's name and fame do not so read-ily find defenders as once they did. Slander is grown too common. When an imputation on a oman's name was atoned for on the "field" me weighed their words. We may be forced to return o the old standard. Respectfully.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Being a minister I am naturally an advocate of peace, but when I see a deserved blow, well planted above the belt, I cannot help but ery out "Amen." You must permit me to congratulate you upon the brilliant and righteous drubbing you gave that "exquisite hypo-crite," Bill Chandler. A few more such opportune excoriations could not fail to take out of him some of that hightoned conceit that makes him such a po litical scourge and nuisance. Sometimes I try to imagine what the end will be—what our country is It is passing strange that Chandler and all his ilk cannot see that the political evils, or which they complain, are due to the animus ompts every word they speak, and every act they form, with reference to the south. I boldly take the position that if the same conciliatory spirit s ctional good will and desire for national prosper sectional good with and does in the south, all sectional and race trouble would be at an end, and our whole country would indeed be "one and un-

MAYOR HEWITT TALKS. HE ATTRIBUTES THE SOUTH'S DE-VELOPMENT TO RAILROADS.

The Party of Distinguished Northern Capitalisis Who Are the Guests of Mr. Inman and Mr. Calhoun, Reached Atlanta Last Night-The Programme for Today-Mayor Hewitt's Views.

The party of northern gentlemen who have ech making a tour of the south as the guests of Mr. John H. Inman and Mr. John C. Calhonn, reached Atlanta last evening. They are Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, Hon. Ed ward Cooper, Mr. Frederick Taylor, Mr. J. Ralph Ellis, Mr. John H. Inman and Mr. John Calhoun.

These gentlemen came from Rome under the escort of an Atlanta delegation consisting of Governor Gordon, Mr. S. M. Inman, Mr. Pat Calhoun, Mr. George M. Taylor, Mr. Alex King and Mr. Cecil Gabbett. Upon their arrival in Atlanta they were met by Mr. Hugh T. Inman, Mr. Jack J. Spalding and other members of the reception committee and were escorted to the Kimball house. Here they met a number of Atlanta gentlemen. After tea the gentlemen separated, Mr. John H. In man and Mr. Hewitt going as guests of Mr. S. M. Inman: Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Taylor with Mr. Pat Calhonn; Mr. Cooper with Gov. ernor Gordon; Mr. Ellis with Mr. Traylor.

A Talk With Mr. Hewitt. "The south will furnish the yearly increase in the iron output of this country, and this fact is due in the main to the liberal treatment on the part of your railroads," says Hon. Abram S. Hewitt last evening.

His attention had been called to a dispatch stating that he and Mr. Cooper contemplated emoving to the south the New Jersey Steel and Iron company, of Trenton, New Jersey, of which they are principal owners. "It is true," he continued, "that we are very deeply impressed by all that we have seen here in the south, and especially by what we have learned about the sensible and liberal spirit manifested by your railroads towards the industries of the section. It is to this, in my opinion, more than to anything else, that the extraordinary development of your section is due. The waelth is here, but it might have lain here untouched had not the railroads shown so liberal a spirit toward those who undertook its development.

"Are present rates lower than those in the north? "Very much lower. I should say that the rates upon new materials given by the south ern roads are less than half those given by the roads in the north. You have superior ores and the coal supply at your doors, but your greatest advantage is in your cheap railroad rates which enable your manufacturers to place their products in any part of the north or west as cheap or cheaper than we can do it urselves." 'Then you contemplate removing?"

"No; the fact that we are dissatisfied with our treatment at the hands of the northern roads doesn't necessarily mean a change on our part. What we shall insist upon is a change on the part of our railroads which must give us better rates or we shall be unable to compete with the iron mills of the south. There are many reasons why we should stay where we are. Mr. Cooper and I are getting to be old men, and we are about through. We think we have earned a vacation and a little rest. Then there is a duty we owe employes there at Trenton-people who have themselves, or whose ancestors have, worked for us and for Mr. Cooper's father for a half a century. All we ask is that the railroads treat us as fairly as the southern railroads treat the iron men of these states."

"You speak of the south furnishing the increase in the output. Do you mean that the outhern mills will drive those of the north out of the market?"

"Oh, no; I don't anticipate anything of that kind. What I mean is this: The yearly increase in the iron output of the world over is about ten million, if I remember rightly. Of this, the increase in the United States is about three million tons. This increase comes from the southern mills-or, in other words, the south is going ahead in iron production, while the north remains stationary

"Has the seuth come up to your expecta-

The last time I was in the both was in 1860, and—well, the change is one's own eyes. The last time I was in the south was in 1860, and—well, the change is simply marvelous. I am here simply on a tour of investigation, with no intention tour of investigation, with no intention of transferring our interests to the south; but it is more than probable that, should these gentlemen inaugurate a new enterprise along their road, we would take stock in it.
"There is one thing I want you to say for me," added Mr. Hewitt. "It is that I am not interested a dollar's worth in any of these rail-roads but came simply as the guest of these roads, but came simply as the guest, of the roads, but came simply as the guest of these gentlemen to look over the country. All that I say about the railroads is from an unprejudiced standpoint. Being greatly interested in the question of rates myself I have studied the situation closely and I say what I do be cause I know it to be true."

ROME, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The Inman party visited west Rome this morning, and the gentlemen were then driven to the exposition grounds. At noon they returned to the Armstrong hotel. The party was aug-mented this morning by the arrival of Gov-ernor Gordon, Pat Calhoun and others from Atlanta. A large number of citizens gathered at the Armstrong at noon to hear addresses be the visitors. Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, of New York, was the first speaker. He made a splendid speech, and wound up by saying that he would leave one of his experts in Rome to examine the minerals of this county, and would probably locate a plant here. Governor Gordon followed in a magnificent address, which was loudly applauded. Then followed ex-Mayor Cooper, of New York; Frederick Taylor, John H. Inman, John C. Calhoun and Pat Calhoun in eloquent speeches. Hon. John T. Graves of the Tribune, replied in behalf of the people of Rome. His address was half of the people of Rome. His address was a splendid specimen of wit and eloquence, and was warmly received. A reception followed and at 2 o'clock the distinguished party left for Atlanta. Our visitors were enthusiastic in their praises of Rome. With one accord they pronounce if the prettiest city they have visited, and predicted a brilliant future for our city and county.

The visit will do much good and will, without doubt, result in the location of several in portant manufacturing plants here.

That is why I made these changes; that is what I recommend you made these changes; that is what I recommend to do, and that is why I would like to have you ap

Mr. Wanamaker looked in considerable astonistment at the imperturbable replica of Thomas A. Democratic Leaders Already Laying Their Plans for the Next Fight. From the Boston Heraid, WASHINGTON, March 17 .-- The leaders he democratic party, who have apparently been ery quiet since the close of the last compaign, have held a good many consultations among them-solves in regard to the future conduct of the party, and it is probable that before long the country will discover that there is a good deal of life left in the men who managed the campaign of 1888 on the democratic side. It is understood that a programme of future political effort is being carefully considered, and that at an carly day systematic steps will be taken toward the initiation of a vigorous offensive and defensive warfare against the republicans. The friends of Cieveland very strongly feel that they ought to have won last year, and that they would have, could the campaign have been protracted for a week longer. They are satisfied that the work they did was excellent in its way and that if there had been more of it, the result would have been in their favor. As one prominent Cleveland man expressed it, they were "lied down" by the republican press and spellbinders during the late campaign, and do not pro pose to be "lied down" in future campaigns. They intend to carry on the tariff reform fight more vigorous than ever, to make a tremendous effort through the press and otherwise to set forth the merits of Mr. Cleve'and's administration, and make a hot warfare on the republicans from the very beginning of the Harrison administration, They believe that the republicans are sure to adopt courses which will furnish the democrats with all the material they need for lively and constan attacks. They mean to keep the public fully en-lightened in regard to the conduct of the Harrison and Blaine crowd, and to appeal to public sentiment everywhere with a view to reversing in 1892 the verdict of 1888. It is too early to indicate in detail the methods nich the democratic leaders propose to adopt, but it is already certain that whatever can be accom plished by organization and the expenditure of money for the thorough information and enlightenment of the voters of the country will be done. It is believed that the extravagant appropriations of public money, such as the direct tax bill, the Blarc educational bill, the dependent pension bill, etc., to which the republicans are committed, together with the strong probability of serious financial troubles during the next three years, will greatly emes during the next three years, will greatly em rrass the party in power, and render it far easie r the democrats to reach the minds of the peopl an it was during the late cam; aign.

SAURIAN OR DRAGON?

PREHISTORIC MONSTER CAST UP BY AN EARTHQUAKE.

Swallows One Man Alive - European Scientists Frightened Out of Their Wifs-Descriptions Which Do Not Agree.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, February 26 .- A party f European travelers who have recently ar rived in this city, coming from the district affected by the recent earthquake, relate with every assurance of truthfulness an almost incredible story. They state at the time of the disturbance they were engaged in scientific explorations, endeavoring, among other things, to trace one of the smaller feeders of the great river Amazon to its source in the northern section of the Audes mountains. A low, bel-lowing sound which seemed to proceed from a spot directly beneath them gave the first intimation of the approaching phenomenon. This was followed by a violent shaking which threw several of the party off their feet, and before they had recovered from the first shock of terror and surprise there was another roar like the sound proceeding from the simultaneous discharge of several monster pieces of artillery, and to their horror the ground began to give way beneath their feet, fissure after fissure ap pearing in the earth's surface, into which rocks, trees and everything else seemed to tumble and be swallowed immediately up. By marvelous good fortune the ground immediate vicinity remained intact, and after enduring in anticipation all the HORRORS ATTENDANT UPON SUCH A DEATH as they must have suffered had the disturbance reached them they succeeded in getting away from the dangerous spot. To add to the danger of their position night was approaching, and with the suddenness which atends the transition in this region. they had time to take any steps for getting away from the scene of devastation the sun disappeared and they were compelled to remain where they were, being indeed afraid to cross the short distance which intervened between them and the chapparal where they had amped on the previous night, and where their provisions and blankets were stored. In this anything but agreeable position they had to remain for the twelve hours which constitute tropical night, without even the facilities for lighting a fire to keep off the roaming beasts of prey which might be hovering round. When the morning dawned the luckless travelers gazed upon a sight which THRILLED THEM TO THE MARROW.

Not fifty yards from them, and directly beween the spot where they were standing and the timber, they saw a monster which must have made each of them fancy they were in for a genuine fit of delirium tremens. object was an immense and apparently inert mass of animal life, the hideous appearance of which seems to have baffled description, as of which seems to have barned descriptin, as the accounts of no two of the travelers are exactly alike. All agree, however, that the creature must have been some prehistoric monster which had probably been in a state of hibernation in the bowels of the earth, perhaps millions of years, and is comparable to no species of life at present existing on this planet. It seems safe to the property of th isting on this planet. It seems so to assume from a comparison their statements that the creature was n less than fifty feet in length, was possessed number of legs, and was, in shape, some-what after the order of the alligator, having a similar scaly exterior and an equally repulsive appearance about the head. It was also furnished with enormous bat-like wings, and was eight or ten times as large as the biggest specimen of crocodile species at present known, while, as circumstances proved, it was a convergence of the speciment even more aggressive. The sun ray's soon had the effect of waking the ENORMOUS CREATURE FROM ITS TORFOR, and, raising its head with a horrible hissing sound, it commenced to twist its tail as if in rage at having been kept so long in du ance rile. It no sconer saw the group of men, who were all too dumb with terror to utter a word, and thinking only by that means they be able to execute a flank movement on the terrible brute and get away to the shelter of the forest, then, as if guided by diabelic instinct, it fastened its eyes upon the ill-fated group and, resuming the terrible hissing noise, flung itself by one sudden [bound right into their milst. They scattered immediately as if a bomb had fallen among them, with the exception of one poor fellow, a German doctor of philosophy named Hartmann, whom it picked up as a cat night a mouse, poised on its horrible fang-like ongue for a moment, as if tickling its nalate with a new-found delice. tongue for a moment, as if tickling its palate with a new-found delicacy, and then consigned with a new-tound deficacy, and then consigned to its inner regions, spectacles and all. The others, concluding that by the time the dragon had completed its breakfast there would be no one left to chronicle the mysterious disappear-one left to chronicle the mysterious disappearance of the party, made a lively dash for the forest and succeeded in reaching it.

THEY HAD ONLY JUST CREPT IN between the parasitical growth which makes such a dense jungle of the South American forest before the monsier, enraged at the prospect of being cheated out of its prey, flung itself with such force against the timber that its sent a splendid large tree crashing to the ground.

By availing themselves of the intricacies of the jungle the travelers managed to clude the fury of the huge brute, and eventually succeeded in getting clear of his clutches. The man who became a prey to the beast's voracity was an exceedingly talented gentleman, who had made a majester of beautiful to the control of the had made a specialty of botany, and had been sent out by his university in Germany to examine the flora of the American tropics. Dr. Gailot asserts positively that when it raised its head and gave vent to the peculiar hissing sound he saw the

THE WOMAN'S STORY. MRS. HAMILTON TALKS ABOUT HER

Mrs. Hamilton, the Woman Whose Throat Was Cut By Her Husband, Tells the Story of Her Life— The Husband Released on $2,500 Ball—He Has

C. J. Hamilton, who cut his wife's throat, is Gone to Savannah.

Judge Pat Owens released him on a $2,500 ond, signed by Messrs. C. T. Watson and A.

W. Hill, as securities, yesterday morning. There was some discussion as to whether the prisoner should be allowed to go at large under the existing circumstances, but the point was decided in favor of the prisoner on ecount of the certificate of Dr. Jarnigan and Dr. Giddings, which stated that Mrs. Hamilton "is practically out of danger from the cut received last Friday, and that the wound is healing nicely, and in our opinion all danger of a fatal issue has passed."

The defense argued that Chief Connolly was the prosecutor, and that on his judgment the case should be principally determined.

Mr. C. A. Loring, attorney for the plaintiff, pleaded for the detention of the prisoner, or in the event that that could not be granted, the fixing of a bond large enough to force him to appear. He asked for a $5,000 bond, and the court placed it at $2,500.

Mrs. Hamilton's Story. Mrs. Hamilton was seen in her room at the Kimball house yesterday afternoon, pale and emaciated.

She is a lady of medium height, with a wealth of blonde hair and a most expressive face. Her conversation is that of one reared in luxury and whose associates have been of the most cultivated people.

"When a girl of seventeen," she said, "I left my boarding school and went to Savannah on a vacation. While stopping there I changed my mind in regard to going to Staunton, Va. to graduate, and decided to graduate at the public schools in Savannah. I stopped there with a cousin, Carrie ——, and it was through her efforts that I was induced to marry Charlie Hamilton. I was only a child, and they gave me diamond rings and jewelry and all sorts of nice things, and finally induced me to consent to marry him. I did so blindly, without ever once guessing at the true character of the

An Elopement.

"Did you elope?"
"Well," said she a little huskily, at the same time arranging the supports of her wounded throat. "We came to Atlanta together, but Charlie thought that I was fooling him, even then accusing me of just bringing him to Atlanta to turn him over to the police, and then go on home to New Orleans myself. We tried to get married here, but we could not, and we went on to Kansas City, and tried to get married there; but the railroad connections there were so short that we failed, and were no married until we reached Denver.

"It was there my severest trials began. I had between two and three hundred dollars in money, and Charlie lived on that until it gave out-three or four months. He did not try to get any work there, and while there my father wrote to him, from New Orleans, that he, Charlie, had married me as a child, and I was surely entitled to some protection on that score. He further said that had he, my father, been made acquainted with the facts, the marriage should never have occurred."

"If I were to tell you the whole story it would read more wildly than anything you have read in dime novels. After remaining out there, almost on starvation, for several months—you see I could not eat the coarse food provided for me—I decided to return home. In the meantime, Charlie secured a position on the Rocky Mountain News, but he e was incapable, and was discharged after two

"I THEN PAWNED MY DIAMONDS and jewelry, my silk dresses and other wardrobe; and finally went to the ticket agent to secure reduced rates home, which were granted. When the ticket agent signed them he wrote to the other agents along the line: 'If there ever was a case of deserving charity it is this.' He also asked me if I had a busband, and when I told him that my husband

'Well, he must be a nice fellow to allow young girl that he has married to come to this.'
"We came back to Savannah to live then, and Charlie secured a position on the Savannah, Florida and Western road."

"Did he mistreat you then?" "Oh," said she as she passed her hand over the bandaged wound, "he has always been

I ran into a store for proand was saved. At another time he choked this little dog of mine till its tongue ran out, on the public streets. Then, because it was a special pet of mine, he took a little canary bird and just wrung its head off. He cut half my hair off with that same razor last winter, and I suppose he has threatened me a dozen times with it. He has been carrying it nearly ever since I have Why, once, when we had been at outs fer a few days, and would not speak to each other; he came to and told me that if I did not make up with him he would

It burned through in several minutes, and I made up with him quickly, you may be sure. "He kept me in terror of my life with that razor, and I was afraid to go out with him alone when he was in his jealous moods."

WHY SHE WENT AWAY. "Tell me why you went away."

"Well, to begin at the beginning, ever since we were married, seven years ago, I have been in the habit of going home to see my parents at Mardi Gras. They are both old and they look for me to come at that time. I missed last year and my mother wrote me not to fail to come this year. All my plans were arranged and Charlie got passes for me, for the round trip, to return by way of Atlanta. I was to have left on Thursday, the 7th of February, but Charlie gaid that if a certain little family matter transpired, it would be necessary for me to wait till Saturday. I eed to do so, but as that did not occur, I insisted on leaving Thursday, as I had my trunks packed, and I could see no good reason for remaining just on occount of a notion of when Charlie telegraphed me to SEND HIM TEN DOLLARS, as he was going west by way of New Orlean Like a little fool I telegraphed him the money. The next telegram I received : 'Charlie is badly hurt. Come home immediately.'

"What did you answer?" "I knew there was nothing in it, for I had just been informed through the papers that he was discharged, and I had learned that it was because of his having come into Jacksonville drunk. The yard master discovered the fact, and reported it, and he was discharged. and reported it, and he was discharged. THE KIMBALL TRAGEDY. "Now, will you tell me about the tragedy?" "I had just risen and dressed, and dressed my little boy, and had rung for the bell boy. I heard a loud knock in the hall, and thought that it was at my door. I stepped to the door and peeped out and I saw Charlie coming down the hall. I knew him by that swagger ing gait. ABOUT THAT MAN.

ABOUT THAT MAN. Mrs. Hamilton said that the story of a man being in the room was mythical, and the asser-tion that her little boy had been kept in con-from that her fittle boy had been kept in confinement to prevent his telling the story, is false. She says that the scarf found there was one that she was painting for herself, and had laid out to dry.

When asked her maiden name she said:

"I had rather not give that, as my parents are old and unable to help me in any way, and I don't want them to learn the story of my don't want them to learn the story of my misfortunes, as it would only grieve them and not benefit me." As to parting with her child, she said she would sooner part with her right arm than to give up the child into the care of such a father.

The southern league has been formed, and Atlanta, its mainstay and keystone, is in, and in to stay.

Now play ball!
The league will be composed of six cities, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Charleston, Chattanooga and Birmingham, all good teams and possessing staying qualities.

The organization of the league was perfected last night at the Kimball house. Day before yesterday the league met in Chattanooga but Atlanta was not present. The other five cities were extremely anxious to have Atlanta in the league, and went ahead forming a schedule with this city in. Then the meeting adjourned to Atlanta, and Mr. Wharton, president of the league, Mr. P. J. Reilly, resident of the New Orleans club, Mr. M Kaufman, a director of the same club, James Woods, of the Memphis club, and Mr. Ross A. Smith, of the Charleston club, came to Atlanta

In the afternoon at half-past four the league met in the Kimball for a resumption of business, Mr. T. D. Wharton presiding.

Mr. Woods represented Memphis. Mr. Reilly and Mr. Kauffman represented New Orleans. Mr. Smith represented Charleston. Birmingham and Chattanooga were represented by proxy, while several Atlanta gentlemen represented the home club.

President Wharton reviewed the situation in the league, recounting all that has transpired since the organization was started. He asserted that Atlanta was absolutely essential o the success of the league, and expressed a belief that she would come in, saying that he had no doubt about it becoming a paying member. The Atlanta delegates stated that Atlanta

BY THE PEOPLE. Representative O'Neil Will Introduce a Bill to Elect the Commissioners. At the next session of the legislature a bill will be introduced providing for the election of county commissioners by the people, instead of The bill will be introduced by Hon James F. O'Neil, of Fulton. For some time past this matter has been very freely discussed, and the prevailing opinion seems to be that the present method of selecting commissioners should be done away with and the choice left directly to the people.

The people living in the country districts re especially vigorous in their protests, claiming that they are not as fully and fairly represented as they should be, and that the county roads are not cared for as they would be if hey had a voice in the matter.

While the commissioners are not charged with being unfaithful to their duty, still it is claimed that if they were directly responsible to the people for their action, the result would be more satisfactory to the entire county.

In speaking of his proposed bill yesterday, Mr. O'Neil said:

'I have had this measure under consideration for quite a while. In fact, I made it an issue in my canvass, and would have introduced it last session had it not been for a mistake concerning the length of time which the law requires such an act to be advertized. However, at the coming session, I will give it my first attention, and I anticipate no trouble in having it passed, as the necessity for a change is evident to any one who has taken the trouble to look into the matter. If you will take into consideration the fact that the county commission stands in the same relation to the county as the city council does to Atlanta, you will readily see the necessity of having them elected instead of appointed. As it is now the people have no voice in the matter whatever, but are com-pelled to abide by the decision of the grand jury, or even half the members of that Now, the commissioners have entire control of the affairs of the county, and as a matter of course their responsibility is not small. While of course the present board would not do it intentionally, it would be an easy matter for another, of not as good material, to act in direct opposition to the wishes of the majority of the voters of the county. They have power to fix the rate of taxation for the county, and the funds of the county are at their disposal, and to my mind the office is far too important a one to be filled by jury appointment."

"What does your bill provide for?" "It provides that as soon as a vacancy occurs in the board, it shall be filled at a special election held for that purpose, each succeeding vacancy to be filled in a like manner until all five of the commissioners have been elected. When the commission has been filled as thus provided, the election shall occur every two years, at the same time as the regular county election, the commissioners serving two years instead of three, as at present. There is some time, however, between now and the time of the meeting of the legislature, and I would, of course, be glad to have any suggestions looking toward a perfect bill to carry out the line above indicated

TALK OF THE SIDEWALK.

More people than you have any idea of depend upon other people for advice in their business affairs. One prominent Atlanta lawyer, who is jus: recovering from a severe illness brought about by overwork, has, it is estimated, tifly callers a day, who consult him about their own business affairs. There are probably others who have as many Then there are, besides, many people in other walks of life who seem naturally to inspire that sore or confidence, and who are consulted upon everything, from the best way to aid baby's tooth in its advent to the proper form of a dying man's will. Advice is cheap as estimated by the giver, unless he be a lawyer, but good advice is very valuable to the one who receives and acts upon it, especially if he be one of those people who lack self-reliance.

A Correction.

From the Charleston, S. C., World.
In the last issue of the Budget a statement was made on what was then deemed sufficient au. thority, in relation to the testimony given by Miss Julia Smith to the coroner, in which it was made to appear that Miss Smith was present in Dr McDow's office soon after the shot was fired.

McDow's office soon after the shot was fired.

We deem it our duty to say that the statement so published is now ascertained to be erroneous; that Miss Smith was not at McDow's residence at the time of the shooting, and did not know of it until later in the after Boon. We regret this publication exceedingly, not only because it is erroneous, but for the further reason that the lady is an orphan, without a natural protector, and is entitled to every consideration and freedom from mirrepresentation. She is a nicee of the late J. Lawrence Smith, the distinguished scientist, who was a native of Charleston, but subsequently a resident of Louisville, Ky., where his widow, a daughter of the late Hon. James Guthrie, n'ew resides.

Miss Smith is at this time, and since the tragedy, has been, at the bedside of her nearest friend, Mrs. McDow, under the protection of Mr. C. D. Ahrena.

This, we trust, will disabuse the public mind as to her relation to this lamented occurrence.

ocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, March 20.—The volume of business in the stock market was still further restricted today, but the improvement began yesterday made further progress, and with but few exceptions the active stocks this evening are fractionally higher, with some marked gains among the specialties. London prices came lower this morning, and this, with the announcement of a failure upon the exchange, led to temporary depression, but the sustaining inducine of the short interest and the cessation of bearish dispatches from Chicago soon made themselves felt, and soon the firm tone was resumed. There were some efforts made to get grangers and southwesterns down, but the effort was inconsiderable, none of those slocks ever getting much below the opening figure. Northwestern and Rock Island showed more vulnerability than others, but yielded only fractions and had no marked influence upon the remainder of the list. Coal stocks were quite strong upon reports from Philadelphia that the companies had agreed upon a plan tor the regulation of trade during the present year, and many of them reached the best prices for a week past. The most marked feature about the general list was its quietness and steadiness, with a firm tone, but several of the specialties made remarkable advances, while showing unusual animation. Chicago Gas was a feature and became made remarkable advances, while showing unusua auimation. Chicago Gas was a feature and became a leader of the market. The spurt in Chesapeake and Ohio first preferred stock also attracted much attention. High figures brought out some long ock and there was a fractional reaction from the best prices, though the market closed dull and firm. The amount of business done was 225,000 shares. Burling:on and Northwestern are slightly lower, but everything else is higher and Pullman rose 3 per cent, Chicago Gas 25% Cleveland, Columbus, Cinchunati and Indianapolis 15%. Short Line 11%, and Chesapeake and Ohio first preferred 11%.

NEW YORK, March 20-[Special.]-Henry Clews & Co.'s cotton circular on the market today says: Secons cotton circular on the market today says: Sales of spot cotton in Liverpool today were 10,000 bales with a steadler feeling at unchanged quotations. Futures ruled very steady, closing at an average of 1692 points over yesterday. This was a surprise to our market. The opening was active with buyers at an advance of 2 points. Receipts promised to be light, which further stimulated prices and created a good demand both for long and short account, under which the market moved up. hort account, under which the market moved ur 5@7 points over last night's close. As result of sale and 2@3 points on distant months. Spot cotton was in fair demand: sales, 206 bales, middling, 10%c.

Southern markets quiet; little doing at unchanged prices. Receipts at the various ports were 6,633 bales, and at the large interfor towns a little less than last year. Our advices from Fall River indicate a settlement of the strike this week and that the eeting this morning only 150 strikers were in JOHN S. ERNEST.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, March 20—A moderate business was transacted in wheat today in aggregate though at times the market ruled very quiet and the feelin was steadier and prices for May averaged higher than yesterday's closing. The influence was again chiefly local. The opening for May was from 1/2 to the same as closing of yesterday, but soon advanced

1%c, declined %c recovered closing about %c and July %c higher than yesterday. A moderate business was reported in corn and fluctuations were confined within %c range. The prevailing feeling was comparatively steady and fluctuations did not vary materially from yesterday Oats were traded in fairly early in the session, but luring the latter part quietness prevailed.

Quite a good business was transacted in mess pork and the market was strong. Prices were advanced 30 to 35c on the whole list and the market closed Lard and short ribs sympathized with pork, MANCHESTER, March 20,-The Guardian'scom mercial article says: There has been a somewhat freer buying of light shirtings for Calcutta at pre-vious prices. This is about the only instance of any improvement in business. The tone is generally exceedingly quiet and sometimes it is flat. Occa-sionally further weakness is apparent. Such in-stances occur mostly in yarn rather than the cloth stances occur mostly in yarn rather than the cloth departments and only where the previous advance has been realized. Elsewhere there is much firm ness. India demand, excepting that mentioned above, is triffing. Few seliers did an average Tues-day's tusiness. China staples are firm, but inactive. Sellers are not anxious for fresh orders, except at Sellers are not anxious for fresh orders, except at tull rates. Some sellers are somewhat stronger on account of sales made last week. Transactions for minor foreign markets are moderate. Home houses are occasionally buying more freely, Manufacturers hold steadily to quotation. In view of the narrowness of margin, they are only desirous to sell enough at current rates to prevent an accumulation of stock. Export yarns are very quiet. There is a small business for India and the continent. There is an exceedingly poer inquiry from China and Japan. Cloth continues quiet, especially in the castern departments. Higher reeds of printing cloth are flat and sales are small. Common has been rather more saleable intely. Prices are discouraging manufacturers. Fancy gray goods are strong and Stopped Taking Morphine.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 16, 1883

DEAR SIR—With much pleasure I am happy to say I am a well woman today, and have gained 37 pounds since I stopped taking morphine. After taking the first dose of your medicine did not want any more morphine, and my friends who saw me a month before I started to taking your medicine do not know me. You have made me a well and hearty woman, and I hope God will bless you and that you may cure all afflicted, for when a woman gets into the habit she had as well be dead. When I left Cedar Keys and came here, and when your medicine gave out I was all right. I wanted to wait and see if I would remain so. Doctor, you can use my name if you wish. I was taking six grains morphine a day. Your obedient servant and sincere friend,

The board of aldermen will meet this morning at the city hall at half-past 10 o'clock. In addition to the routine work of passing upon matter sent up by the council, the board will entertain a conference committee. That committee is composed of Mr. Moran, chairman; Mr. Imman and Mr. Hirseh. Some weeks ago the relief committee recommended that the charity homes be given so much a day for the maintenance of the poor. The board of aldermen declined to concur, and Mr. Moran asked for a conference committee.

What to eat during the Lenten season is a question that has its share of thought. Nearly all who are in anywise interested decide upon a suitable selection of some delicacy—in fish. For instance, what is more palagable than McMennamin's crabs, put up in cans? Nothing is nicer. With each 2 pound can we give you 8 crab shells, which, properly dressed and baked, makes a tempting dish. Then we have a nice brook trout, brofled Major Sidney Root, of the park commission, sat in his office yesterday deftly rolling a cigarette.

ON THE PREMISES. THE LOT runs along the west line of the E. T. V. & G. railroad property 258 ft., its west line being 256 ft straight, the north line fronts Castleberry st, 50 ft, and the south line West Fair, 40 ft. The owner will sell a larger lot if it is desired, as he owns the property between this lot and Peters st. marked "Castleberry Property." Immediately south of Fair street, is the W. B. Lowe lot, across the railroads are Jack's Cracker Factory and Sciple & Son's Lime depot; across Castleberry street are the fieight depot and grounds of the E. T. V. & G. railroad company and W. L. Traynham's lumber depot Thus the property is in the midst of important manufacturing enterprises, very near to the retail business of West Peters street, and has ample railroad facilities and convenient ingress and egress by Fair and Cascleberry streets, besides being very central. In addi-tion to this the lot may be enlarged te meet the demands of an increasing business. The Report of the Commission

The Report of the Commission.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:
The board of capitol commissioners respectfully aubmit the following flual report of its actings and doings, as required by section Xi. of the act authorizing the erection of the capitol building, approved September 8th, 1883.

In accordance with the request of the board, the general assembly, by joint resolution, approved Domcember 14th, 888, extended the time for completing the building and the powers and duties of the commissioners until April 1st, 1889.

On this day, March 20th, 1888, the commissioners have formally delivered the building to his excellency the governor as completed. They have also delivered all plans, drawings and specifications, contracts and vouchers, together with the books and records of the board.

The final reports of the architects and of the superfutendent, certifying to the commissioners that the building has been completed in a skillful and workmanlike manner and in accordance with the contract, have been accepted by the commission and follow this report.

The board has kept steadily in view the expressed and follow this report.

The board has kept steadily in view the expressed intention of the legislature, that the cost of the building shall in no event exceed the sum originally contemplated, and have, as far as practicable, secured labor and material within the state. It affords the commissioners much pleasure, in making their final report, to bear testimony to the making their final report, to bear testimony to the excellence of the work of the architects, Messrs, Edbrooke & Burnham, to whose skill the state is ind-bled for the symmetry and monumental beauty of the building, to the faithful and efficient supervision of Messrs D. W. Chamyagne and John A. Corbally, the superintendents-to the admirable services of Mr W. H. Harrison, whose intel igent assistance, as secretary, has been invaluable to the board—to the uniform aid and courtesy of his excellancy, the governor, and his distinguished predecessor—to the honest and skillfull workmanship of Messrs Miles and Horn, contractors, and to the fair and liberal manner in which they have complied with their contract and the requirements of the board, and to the continued and arduous labors of the various sub-contractors, and their foremen in carrying out the directions of the board, to each of whom the board is indebted as contributors to a final result so satisfactory.

whom the board is indebted as contributors to a final result so satisfactory.

In this connection the board deeply deplores the untimely death of Mr. C. D. Horne, one of the con tractors, on August 7, 1887, in whom the state los at most energetic, capable and valued citizen.

It is with great satisfaction that the commissioners deliver to the state a building, which, though erected at such reasonable cost, will still bear the closest scrutiny as to its appropriateness, grace, and beauty, its adaptation to the ends in view and the substantial excellence of its materials and workmanship.

The board knows of no instance of a public work of this character and magnitude, which has been prosecuted with such harmony and singleness of purpose on the part of all concerned in its direction—and to this cause, above all others, they attribute the successful completion of their labors.

Report of the Architects,

To the Honorable Board of Capitol Commissioners—tientiemen: We herewith submit our final report as supervising a chitects of the new state capitol building now completed and located in the city of Atlanta.

It is very gratifying to us to say to your honorable board that we know of no public building yet erected where every department interested in its construction has moved along from first to last asamoothly and systematically as that of the new capitol building. It seemed as though it was mutually intended by all concerned to present to the people of the state of Georgia more building and a better building for the outlay than any other state can boast of.

can boast of.
You have a building that nowhere can there be found never a building that nowhere can there be found on record a structure possessing equal ment in excellesce of construction and appointments that has not cost more than double that of Georgia's new capitol. We desire also to say that the people of the state of Georgia cannot overestimate the value of the services rendered by the capitol commission and the result of their earnest and faithful labors for the past five syears.

The capital building covers an execute the capital building covers and the value received therefor. They were personally represented at the monthly meetings with the architects to inquire into every detail of the work in progress and to pass on estimates made to the contractors.

The capitol building covers an area of 63,425 square feet of ground. The cubic contents of the whole building are 4,300,000 cubic feet, divided into the cost of the building, $97,281 57—which amount includes all salaries and incidental expenses of every description—gives 19 98-100 cents cost per public foot.

Over three fourths of the material entering into the construction of the building were products of the works of the capitol building.

The time takes to erect and complete the building, considering its magnitude, was small, and had it not been for your favorable climate at least one more year weelf have been consumed in its he more year onstruction.

make this report of the work which your honorable body had intrusted to my supervision, and to congratulate you upon the possession of a building worthy of the interest you have taken in its construction. I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your bedient servant,

John A. Corbally,

TO MEET IN ATLANTA.

The State Grand Lodge, and Then the General Grand Lodge of Masons. The grand lodge of Masons of the state will neet in annual session in Atlanta on the last Tuesday in April next.

The grand lodge is composed of about sixty chapters throughout the state, and will be a horoughly representative body.

The meeting this year will be of unusual interest, as the preliminary arrangements will be made for the triennial convocation of the general grand lodge, which will occur some time during the last two weeks of October. The general grand lodge consists of the four principal officers of the different grand lodges of the states and territories. It is expected that between four and five hundred Masons from every state and territory in the union will be present when the convocation is called to order

This will be the first time in the history of the country that this body has met in the south, and of course this will add additional importance to the occasion. Some of the most prominent men in the country will be here, and Atlanta may count herself fortunate in having been chosen as the place of

The session of the general grand lodge will probably last about a week, during which time fficers for the ensuing three years will be elected, and all business affecting the order throughout the country will be transacted.

At the last meeting of the state grand lodge Macon, a committee of which Mr. J. W Ozlin of Gainesville is chairman, was appointed to undertake the preliminary work for the October meeting. Mr. Ozlin has already done a great deal of work to this end, and everything points to a notable gathering.

SOUTHERN CARRIAGE BUILDERS.

The Association Closes Its Session Here and Makes out a Programme for Next Year.
The Southern Carriage Builders' association in have just finished their annual session in Atlanta.

The meeting has been an enthusiastic one.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: R. H. Jones, Cartersville, Ga., president; G. Walker, Gainesville, Ga., C. H. Osburn, Griffin, Ga., and Geo. L. Summers, Barnesville, Ga., vice presidents; N. C. Spence, Atlanta, secretary, I. A. Curtis, Atlanta.

Atlanta, secretary; I. A. Curtis, Atlanta, treasurer; Rev. A. P. Jones, La Grange, Ga., treasurer; Rev. A. P. Jones, La Grange, Ga., chaplain.

The next annual meeting will be held in Atlanta in February, '90. In connection with this meeting, which is to continue for three days, there will be a regular carriage exposition. There will be prizes offered, not only for finished work, bat for all southern products and material used in the manufacture of vehicles. The exposition will be open to the world in the matter of carts, wheels, springs, axles, bodies.

ter of carts, wheels, springs, axles, bodies, and gears. Handsome premiums will be offered with a view to encouraging the use of southern timbers and specialties.

The programme concludes with an elegant banquet to visiting manufacturers and dealers. A number of speeches will be made and the programme promises to be interesting through Broke Up From Childhood.

I have been afflicted with scrofula ever since I was a small child. To tell of all I have suffered would te a picture too dark and painful teo think of. Years of misery I endured, bud digestion, no appetite, rheumatism in my feet, all these and more than these have made my life a misery. For fifteen years I followed the prescription of physicians, which was no more to me than water poured on the ground. Two years ago I took S. S. and nothing in all my wretched and unhappy life was such a blessing to me as that medicine. After taking six bottles I was a new creature, was free from pain, was clear of rheumatism, was able to sleep, to eat and work, and was well and happy. My rheumatism h s been cured, and has never returned. S. S. S. has certainly been a wonderful blessing to me. Broke Up From Childhood.

The Little Negro Who Stole a French Book-On Who Fancied Opera Glasses-A Negro With a Pair of Crutches-Some Other Queer Ones.

At police headquarters there was, about two weeks ago, a rather dilapidated little book that was written in French. There was not a word of English in it. Even the advertisements and the footnotes were in French.

In its external appearance the book was severely plain and spinster like. There was something about it that suggested old bookstores and dust and cobwebs.

There wasn't a picture in the book. It was taken from a negro prisoner when he was searched at the stationhouse. The darky wasn't more than fifteen or sixteen, ragged, rough and ignorant. He was convicted of stealing the book, and is now serving out a sentence of twelve months in the chaingang.
"Can you read?" the judge asked him.

"Did you think there were pictures in the "No. I seed dev wasn' no pictures." "Was you going to sell it?"

"Then why did you steal it?"

"It was jes dar." The darky had stolen nothing but the book. and why he risked what he did for something that could do him no good on earth, is a ques tion that involves heredity-and something

It's a queer thing.

Two days after this theft was committed a negro broke open a parlor window on West Peachtree street, and stole a pair of opera

He was caught a few hours afterward with the glasses in his pocket, was subsequently convicted of burglary, and has been sentenced for ten years.

"How long since you went to the opera ouse?" asked Judge Van Epps in the city

"Never is been dar, jedge."

"Does your wife go?" "Who, my wife? No, sah." "What did you want with opera glasses

"I don' know, sah. "Why did you steal them?" "I jes couldn' he'p it, jedge."

Heredity again-a queer thing. Another darky out on Houston street stole a pair of crutches from another negro. The thief had no possible use for the crutches, and the man he stole them from was his best friend. They were deacons together in the church and next door neighbors. Just three or four nights ago-last Saturday night, it was-a well dressed young negro man was brought in. There was a sack over his shoulder, and in the sack was about a half bushel of coal. The darky confessed to having stolen it. When the prisoner was searched $8.90 was found in his pockets. He was a barber and had just been paid off.

was a barber and had just been paid off.

Not only did the negro have money to buy coal had he needed it, but actually had more than enough coal at home to last him forthe remainder of the spring. The opportunity had not been thrust upon him. He had walked a mile out of his way, and that after a hard day's work, and then waited in the cold and rain for three quarters of an hour all to steal rain for three quarters of an hour, all to, steal ten cents worth of coal when he had plenty at home, and $8.90 in his pocket.

About two weeks ago an Italian fruit vender was arrested for stealing four sticks of chew-ing gum from another Italian. You can get ing gum from another Italian. You can get six sticks for a nickle.

When the one that had stolen the chewing gum was carried to the station house he was required to give $100 bond. He took a greasy roll of greenbacks from his pocket and counting off ten $10 bills put about $200 back in his pocket, and handed the $100 to the station house keeper.

And yet he had stolen 3½ cents worth of chewing gum.

chewing gum. The other day a negro was arrested for being drunk on the street. He had $4.30 in his pockets. It was his first drunk and the regular fine is $3.75.

He had more than enough to pay his fine. Next morning the darky paid a lawyer $4 to defend him in court. The lawyer plead guilty for the negro, and the prisoner was fined $3.75 or four days. He didn't have the money to pay his fine and was sent to the stockade.

That very thing is done every day.

A lawyer—there's something about the name that the negro likes, a charm that he can't withstand. You may tell him that he has money enough to pay his fine and that if he employs a lawyer he must be sent to the stockade. He understands all that, but he must have a lawyer. ade. He understands all that, but he must have a lawyer.

If the darky had $20 he would spend it all on the lawyer. It is a matter of pride to him-the more his lawyer costs him the prouder the It's a queer thing. The April "Peterson" ought to be in every lady's hands. In engraoings and stories it equals the best purely literary magazines. It gives the spring fashions elaborately illustrated, and miscellaneous matter interesting to the whole household.
